

Farms For Soldiers
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—While everyone in and out of congress has agreed that the soldier should have a farm if he wants one, considerable difficulty is being experienced in trying to decide upon the best plan by which to carry it out. Democrats and republicans are vying with each other in an effort to please the soldier, and as a result of this rivalry the soldier is pretty sure to get almost anything he wants within reason.

Several soldier land bills have been introduced in congress, and others are being prepared for introduction. These bills vary greatly in their scheme of operation. There is the plan of Secretary Lane to retain millions of acres of unused land for farms for the soldiers advancing a ton up to the amount of $2,000 for improving and stocking purposes. Another bill, presented by Congressman Dick Morfitt of Oklahoma, would permit the soldier to obtain a loan of $4,000 with which to purchase a farm or a home in the locality of his choice. A third measure is that introduced by representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania, which would have the United States government buy up great areas of farm, timber and mineral lands, build homes upon them and lease them to the soldiers. The idea of this bill is to have the title to the lands remain in the government, so that speculation in them would be impossible.

Secretary Lane's bill seems to have gained the strongest support. It has the approval of President Wilson and has the backing of a majority of the members of the Public Land's Committee of the house the other day, and will be one of the first bills to receive consideration.

The Lane bill provides that the arid and cut-over lands shall be reclaimed by discharged soldiers and seamen. These men who have reclaimed the land will have first call upon the improved land. The bill stipulates that "the secretary may, through any agent, with the soldier, make provision for the improvement of the land, but the contribution from the fund shall in no single case exceed $1,200, nor in excess of three-quarters of the cost of the improvement." This money is to be repaid to the government within a period not to exceed twenty years at an interest rate of four per cent.

Under the terms of the bill, the Secretary is also authorized to make small loans up to the amount of $800 to a soldier settler for the purchase of necessary live stock and equipment. Repayment of these loans must be made during a period of five years at an interest rate of four per cent. Altogether a soldier settler would be able to borrow $2,000 to improve and stock his farm.

The bill also provides that the land to be reclaimed will be paid for by the land will be the actual cost of reclaiming it, according to the land plan. Upon entering into a contract for the purchase of the land, the soldier will be required to pay the balance of the sale price. The balance shall be paid in amortizing payments, extending over a period not to exceed forty years. The farm will range in size from one-half of an acre to forty acres to a stock farm of 160 acres.

Secretary Lane has received post cards and letters from 137,000 men with whom they have asked all sorts of questions regarding his land proposition. A large percentage of these letters were from young men who lived in towns and cities before the war, and who expressed themselves as being anxious to settle down on a farm. A goodly number were from boys raised on farms who want to have farms of their own.

Having been asked by Congress what evidence there was that the soldiers engaged in the great war were interested in the plan for providing them with farms, Secretary Lane took the grade of captain, still in the service, to find out their views and those of the men under their command. The officers have expressed their opinion that there is a strong demand for his plan, and that thousands of young men who fought in defense of their country now want the chance to own a farm.

One reply received by the secretary was from Major General Mark L. Hersey, 4th division, A. E. F., Germany. Out of 23,365 officers and men in his division, 4,535 expressed themselves as interested in the plan. The largest percentage of would-be farmers was found among the men in the infantry, while the lowest percentage was among the headquarters troops.

UNFILLED STEEL ORDERS INCREASED
New York, Aug. 9.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation on July 31 were 5,878,881 tons, according to the statement issued today. This is an increase of 635,808 tons compared with the orders of June 30.

This is the second increase to be shown in any month since the beginning of the year. The statement for June marked the turn in the tide in the steel industry and the figures for last month indicate a steady improvement in conditions.

The unfilled tonnage on May 31 was 4,232,310, which was less than half of that of July 31, 1918, which was 8,838,801.

PRESIDENT WILSON WILL REVIEW TROOPS
Washington, Aug. 9.—President Wilson will review the famous marine brigade of the second division in Washington. Orders for the two regiments of marines to parade here were issued today by Acting secretary Roosevelt.

These will be the first returning troops to be reviewed by Mr. Wilson and aside from the District of Columbia units they will be the first to march in the capital.

DECREASE SHOWN FROM LAST WEEK
New York, Aug. 9.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week show that they held $51,137,470 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $16,003,320 from last week.

A STATE OF SIEGE NOW IN BUDAPEST

PROCLAMATION ISSUED AFTER RUMANIANS ENTER CITY.
FORMER EMPEROR DECLINES THRONE
Rumanians Claim That Reports of Excuses Are False. Americans Confirm Reports.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Vienna, Aug. 9.—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Budapest, according to advices received here.

It is reported that in view of the programs which had been threatened in Hungary, menacing the Jews, the commander of the Rumanian troops has issued an order that any crime against Jews will be punished immediately by death.

Forward Report
The inter-allied mission at Budapest after a conference with Archduke Joseph and Premier Friederich has forwarded to M. Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, a report on the effect that the introduction of the Rumanian troops into Hungary would have on the peace conference, according to Vienna dispatches received here.

Berlin.—An official Rumanian statement declares the Rumanian troops in Hungary are false, according to a dispatch received from Bucharest.

Want Former Emperor
Paris.—Former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary was beseeched by Magyar patriots to mount the Hungarian throne when the fall of the Hapsburg empire was announced. The emperor refused on the ground, that, having been king and emperor, he could not go down the social scale and be content simply with a king's crown.

Small Police Force
The Rumanians in Budapest are allowing the Hungarians only six hundred gendarmes to patrol the city, according to reports from American officials. These officers declare that a greater force is necessary if the government is to be enabled to effect an organization and function properly.

The American advices confirm reports that the Rumanians are gathering up all kinds of animals and all sorts of supplies to be sent to Rumania.

PLUMB CLAIMS NO THREATS OF STRIKE WERE EVER MADE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 9.—Glenn E. Plumb, continuing his testimony today before the house interstate commerce commission declared that if the plan of the brotherhoods, for control of the railroads were applied to the postoffice department, that government agency would be conducted with greater efficiency.

Representative "Dwight, democrat, Pennsylvania, questioned the witness regarding the attitude of labor in event the Plumb bill passed of passage.

"There has been a great deal of misrepresentation published," Plumb said. "It was stated that I would ever state that my plan failed. No one ever said that. In fact such a report was denied by Mr. Stone, Mr. Morrison and myself. The fact is certain wage demands are being made and the question of a strike arose in connection with that. This is a different matter. It is a question of statesmanship and we would beseech to our own interests if we attempted such methods as threats or strikes."

FIVE PERSONS ARE KILLED BY EXPLOSION

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 9.—Five persons were killed, fourteen are known to have been injured and 150 coming from the result of an explosion which wrecked the government elevator at Port Colborne at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon, according to reports received here. The greatest loss of life is believed to have been on a barge, which was just off the elevator when it was blown up. The barge is said to have carried a large crew.

WILSON TO TAKE UP DOMESTIC PROBLEMS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 9.—Domestic problems now facing the country may be taken up directly with the people by President Wilson during his coming trip to the interior of the peace treaty. This was indicated today at the White House where it also was said that plans for the president's tour were going forward.

LARGE QUANTITY OF GRAIN DESTROYED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—More than 200,000 bushels of grain, mostly oats, were destroyed by fire at the plant of the Keystone Elevator and Warehouse company in this city.

Cincinnati Solves H. C. L.

Consumers buying direct from the farmers at open market in the streets. The belief is current in Cincinnati that one of the primary causes of the high cost of living is the large number of middlemen, each of whom must make his profit on the goods that pass through his hands. Accordingly the farmers and consumers have been invited to meet at an open market in the streets of Cincinnati and deal directly with each other. It is reported that this method works.

LICENSING OF CORPORATIONS BEING STRONGLY OPPOSED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 9.—Congress got down today to analyzing President Wilson's recommendations for reduction of the increased cost of living.

Although some members of congress are in favor of the order, the order to license the corporations is being strongly opposed.

The order, received here by Postmaster General A. S. Burleson, is to license the corporations engaged in interstate commerce and for to reduce the cost of living. The order is being strongly opposed.

Suggestions for federal licensing of corporations engaged in interstate commerce and for to reduce the cost of living. The order is being strongly opposed.

Many of the league of nations in the senate criticized the stress laid by the president on enforcement of the peace treaty. Some of them, including Chairman Lodge and Senator Harding, Ohio, of the foreign relations committee, declaring there was connection between the cost of living.

Ordered to Assist.
All special agents of the department of justice over the country have been ordered to assist district attorneys in uncovering evidence of profiteering in foodstuffs and other necessities.

Attorney General Palmer's instructions were that the special agents should drop everything but the most pressing cases now pending and devote their entire attention to assisting in the campaign to reduce the cost of living. The result will be to put hundreds of trained investigators in the search for men who have inflated prices exorbitantly.

Evidence Accumulating.
While it was not so stated, the impression was that nothing but the investigation of radical propaganda which has been in recent years would be allowed to interfere with the efforts to punish profiteering.

Numerous reports received at the department from district attorneys indicated that much evidence against profiteers was being accumulated. Prosecutions are expected to result soon.

In a drive to curb profiteering among farmers who, it is charged, sell foodstuffs in this city at abnormal prices and do not properly mark the goods as required by state law, Murray Livingston, city ordinance officer, today arrested 32 farmers charging them with misdemeanor.

The arrests were made at markets in different parts of the city. The defendants will be arraigned before a police magistrate this afternoon.

Republican Leader Mondell declared in the house today that congress was ready to act promptly on such legislative suggestions made yesterday by President Wilson for reducing the high cost of living.

Further appropriations suggested by the president will be made quickly, Mr. Mondell said.

"Congress stands ready to consider any measure," declared the republican leader "and hopes such estimates as are necessary and essential will be submitted to congress as possible."

In regard to legislation Mr. Mondell said some of it would be enacted promptly, while that affecting "profoundly the policies of the government" would, he thought, require more time for a quick consideration of the house, he added.

DISCUSS DISPOSITION OF WAR PRISONERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, Friday, Aug. 8.—The disposition of prisoners held by America forces in France was discussed today at the supreme council of the peace conference and it was decided that it was impossible to release such prisoners until three powers have agreed to a treaty with Germany. It would be necessary, therefore, for the United States to co-operate with France in guarding the prisoners and this will probably make it necessary to retain some American soldiers in France.

POSTAL SUB-STATION ABANDONED TODAY ON ORDER FROM BURLESON

Janesville bade farewell today to its only postal sub-station—the one located in the People's Drug Co. store at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets. The official order, this morning, to abandon the service immediately. The order, received here by Postmaster General A. S. Burleson, is to license the corporations engaged in interstate commerce and for to reduce the cost of living. The order is being strongly opposed.

The station has been a necessary service and its removal will work a hardship on the community. The order is being strongly opposed.

We know the sub-station is necessary to our business life.

Failure of the postal authorities and the People's Drug Co. to agree on a contract for another year because of increased maintenance cost asked, is given as the reason for Mr. Burleson's surprising decision. The order is being strongly opposed.

Rail Workers Are Against Threats To Get Demands

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 9.—Leaders of the fifteen organizations of railroad employees united today in a definite declaration that they would not be intimidated by threats to get demands.

"In my opinion," he said, "congress would not be justified in enacting such radical legislation without a mandate from the people."

Senator Hitchcock, democrat, Nebraska, announced today that he was opposed to the plan of the railroad brotherhoods for reorganization of the railroads.

"In my opinion," he said, "congress would not be justified in enacting such radical legislation without a mandate from the people."

FARMERS PLAN TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 9.—Representatives of farmers organizations in twenty-four wheat and corn growing states will attend a conference in Washington Monday to discuss the high cost of living, according to John G. Brown, president of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations.

Mr. Brown returned from Chicago yesterday where he attended a meeting of farmer representatives of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa at which it was decided to call the meeting at Washington.

Mr. Brown said the farmers expect to carry their side of the question to the president and stay in Washington until some kind of a solution has been reached.

SHOWERS PREDICTED FOR NEXT WEEK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 9.—Weather predictions for the week beginning Aug. 11, follows:

Region of Great Lakes: Normal temperature and generally fair except for occasional showers and light rain toward end of week.

Upper Mississippi Valley: Normal temperature and generally fair except that occasional showers are probable first half of week.

CURTAILMENT OF TRAFFIC CONTINUES; LOCAL MEN STILL OUT ON STRIKE

CONGESTION OF CARS AT BOTH YARDS GROWING GREATER.
STRIKERS ARE DISINCLINED TO RETURN TO WORK.

NO MORE LOCAL TRAINS ANNULLED
Strikers Hold Meeting at New Headquarters On West Milwaukee Street.

Increased congestion of cars and locomotives at both the C. & N. W. and M. & W. P. yards formed the only new local development in the railroad shopmen's strike situation today. No more passenger or freight annulments were announced by agents of either road.

While passenger service continues almost normally on both lines with the exception of the two trains annulled yesterday by the Northwestern line, the strike is having a more noticeable effect on freight service, several time freights on both lines having been taken off pending the return of the shopmen to their jobs.

The conditional freight embargo of the Northwestern road prohibiting shipment of carloads, livestock, or perishables continued in force today while the St. Paul is still accepting freight shipments subject to delay.

That local strikers are apparently disregarding advice of President Wilson and international union officials is the belief of those in touch with the situation. A report circulated through the city this morning that the men had returned to work was found to be false.

Headquarters of the strikers were moved today from North Academy street to 506 West Milwaukee street, in the building located to the rear of the Williams Hotel. The situation will be discussed at a meeting held there this morning, but no official statement was issued by the strike committee.

A copy of the letter written by President Wilson to the General Committee of the strike was received today by A. L. Hemmens, local C. & N. W. agent, and was posted on a bulletin board.

Sept. B. E. Terpin, a request to the strikers to go back to their jobs written by B. M. Jewell, acting president of the executive council of railroad employees, was also received by Mr. Hemmens.

ALL GUARDS HAVE BEEN REMOVED FROM CHICAGO STOCK YARDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 9.—Five hundred policemen, who had been assigned to guard the stockyards today, were withdrawn from the stockyards today. About 1,000 patrolmen and 100 deputy sheriffs are on duty in the vicinity of the stockyards.

President Martin Murphy of the stockyards labor council said the men would not return to work until every guard has been withdrawn and permission is granted labor organizers to unionize the 9,000 negroes employed at the plants.

Union officials declare that of 43,550 employed in the stockyards, 38,500 are out while the packers insist that not more than 10,000 are on strike. They reported that the plants of Armour and Company, Swift and Company, Morris and Company and Wilson and Company still are in operation, but admit they are not running more than fifty percent of capacity.

Union leaders said today that 500 engineers employed at the stockyards had been ordered to join the strike tonight.

Union leaders, it is said, are considering the advisability of delivering an ultimatum to the packers making the stockyards a closed shop and demanding the discharge of the 9,000 non-union negroes.

MUST GUARD AGAINST ICE FLOES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 9.—Special precautions against the possible presence of ice floes and bergs in the path of the battleship Renown, bringing the Prince of Wales to Canada, were taken today. It was announced that cruiser Dauntless would cruise aboard the Grand Banks for the purpose of locating ice and would then proceed to sea to escort the Renown to her anchorage.

Preparations for the royal visitor's reception were being hastened today. The cruiser Dragon, to which the prince will be transferred from the Renown will enter this harbor Tuesday and will be escorted through long lines of gaily decorated naval and commercial craft. The prince will land at noon and, after receiving the age from colonial and city officials, will ride beneath eight great welcome banners.

DESERVING MEN BACK

Des Moines, Ia.—Nine hundred striking railway shopmen at the Rock Island yards here announced today they would return to work within 24 hours.

FURTHER CURTAILMENT

Boston, Mass.—The shopmen's strike on New England railroads caused further curtailment of passenger and freight traffic. The movement of freight trains in the movement of the strike, conditions are gradually improving. He expects a majority of the strikers will be back at their posts Monday.

Although the officials of the Chicago council of federated union insist that 250,000 men are out and that not more than 25,000 have returned, railroad officials declare that the total number on strike does not exceed 40,000.

It is said that several thousand shopmen have gone back on the roads entering Chicago and that the number was being augmented hourly.

Officials of the International union who came to Chicago yesterday to urge the men to work continued their efforts today. Hundreds of telegrams were sent to cities in the middle west and north, ordering the strikers back to their posts.

Interesting points regarding matrimony are raised by a clause in the will of a London magnate. The maker of the will expressed an "earnest wish and desire" that no child should marry until that age was reached.

She already is an active member of the Big Sister movement at Walter Reed hospital at Washington. She is to be a debutante in capital society next season.

BOTH PARTIES ARE ANXIOUS TO HELP RETURNED SOLDIER

plying to Secretary Lane, said, "It now develops that there are sixty-five men in the battalion who are open to a farm proposition, or about twenty-five per cent of the entire personnel. As to the desirability of your plan, it is difficult to conceive of opposition to it. The past experience of your department in the reclamation of land should make it evident that whether for men of the service or for others, the turning of arid or deforested areas into productive farms is of the greatest value to the country at large."

Colonel William N. Haskell of the American Relief Mission to Roumania, writing from Bucharest, said, "No man who owns land will ever be a bolshevik. Here in Roumania I am in close touch with Bolshevism; it is to the east of us in Bessarabia, to the west of us in Hungary, and to the north of us in Russia. This country is opposed to Bolshevism for the simple reason that four-fifths of the population are attached to the soil; it is an agricultural country."

In all, Secretary Lane received several thousand answers from officers and all gave unqualified endorsement to his plan. In opposition to Secretary Lane's scheme for locating soldiers on farms, is the plan of Congressmen. The bill proposed to provide a government corporation with $100,000,000 capital, subscribed by the federal government. The corporation would be authorized to make loans up to $5,000 to any honorably discharged soldier, sailor or marine to be used in the purchase of a home. The location would depend upon the soldier himself. The loans would be carried by government bonds, with interest at the rate of three and one-half per cent. The amount of the loan would equal the full appraised value of the home, but not exceeding sixty years, with interest at the rate of three and one-half per cent. The chief funds for financing the proposition would be obtained through the issue and sale of bonds by the corporation. To insure the sale of these bonds, the government would guarantee the payment of both principal and interest, and the bonds would be free from taxation.

The Morgan bill were adopted, more than $18,000,000,000 would have to be raised in bonds to finance the project. In taking steps to provide farms for discharged soldiers, the United States is following in the foot-steps of Australia and Canada. In Australia, the idea of providing a discharged soldier with a farm was worked out before the end of the war, so that when the Australians who fought in France returned home, they could immediately apply for a farm in any one of the six Australian states. The discharged Australian could either secure a farm improved and ready for settlement and cultivation, or find a state board ready to give him practical instruction in farming and advice, and direction in improving and cultivating his farm. The State of Queensland purchased 500,000 acres of privately owned land for discharged soldiers. The soldier can borrow $2,500 for the erection of buildings, and $3,500 for equipment. He has forty years' time to pay the equipment loan at three and one-half to five per cent.

The State of Victoria has provided irrigable lands and wheat-growing lands, and has made available $11,250,000 to improve his farm at five per cent interest, the money to be repaid in a period of twenty years. The province of Ontario will lend a soldier settler in that province $500 in addition, and some provinces will lend him up to $1,500.

ANOTHER "NEAR BEER" DRINKER IS FINED

Three "near-beer" drinkers, Martin Raybor, a pleader guilty to the charge of drunkenness in a recent case, and two others, were fined $2.50 to improve his farm at five per cent interest, the money to be repaid in a period of twenty years. The province of Ontario will lend a soldier settler in that province $500 in addition, and some provinces will lend him up to $1,500.

Taking into consideration what has been done for the returned soldier in Canada and Australia, it behooves our government, which has never been satisfied to be outdone by any other nation in the world in looking after its fighting men, to decide upon the means it intends to pursue in providing farms for those of our soldiers who want them.

William Hanel pleaded not guilty to a serious charge brought against him by Miss Thekla Isenhorst, Beloit. His case is set for Tuesday, Aug. 12. Hanel is an employee of the Fairbanks-Morse company, Beloit.

MARRIAGES MADE OUTSIDE THE STATE ARE LEGAL--BLAINE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 9.—That marriages are legal when made outside of the state is the opinion of Attorney General John J. Blaine in a brief which has just been filed with Milwaukee judges at the marriage question. He holds that medical examination and health certificates, while required in Wisconsin will not invalidate a marriage in another state without complying with this provision.

The general rule of law unquestionably is that a marriage valid where it is celebrated is valid everywhere. "To this rule, however, there are two general exceptions which are well recognized: (1) marriages which are deemed contrary to the law of nature and (2) marriages which are generally recognized by the lawmaking power of the forum has declared shall not be allowed validity on the grounds of public policy."

His opinion then points out that under the first classification, marriages while either of the parties has a husband or wife living; or between persons nearer kin than second cousins, or of a party to an action for divorce in any court in this state until one year after judgment of divorce is entered are prohibited. The second question raised is whether or not it was intended by the legislature that the physical examination required by statute is required of those celebrating their marriage without the state as well as within the state and was in the intention of the legislature to make such provisions extraterritorial, to the effect that the law of the domicile should apply.

"Until the legislature has expressly indicated its intention to make the physical examination and health certificate and license regulations extraterritorial and provided a manner by which these provisions shall be complied with without the state, I believe extraterritorial effect to these provisions is not permissible," says Attorney General Blaine. "The consequences that will arise if extraterritorial effect is given to the statutes with reference to physical examination and health certificates and license will be appalling. The number of marriages that have been contracted without the state since 1913 or 1915 may be many. To defeat the legitimacy of children and the rights of the children and mothers to property ought not to be done. It is not clearly say clearly and without any question that the marriage act, with reference to physical examination, health certificate and license are extraterritorial. Until the legislature in a valid way makes provisions for the physical examination and health certificate, and for that matter, the license, so that the same will be applicable to persons domiciled in this state through the state and perfecting a practical system so that force and effect may be given to the statute, it is only left to the courts to accept and enforce the law as they find it and prevent serious and irreparable injury to perhaps scores of innocent women and children."

PRICES OF STAPLE ARTICLES SOAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Chicago, Aug. 9.—Every single staple in which there are dealings on the board of trade rose decidedly in price today. Whatever effect to the contrary might have been looked for from the address of President Wilson on the high cost of living, was entirely obscured by the opposite influence of the government crop report which was issued shortly before he spoke. Price changes turned almost entirely on the exceptional severity of crop damage. The July cut of 221,000,000 bushels in estimated wheat production was said to be the most drastic on record. Extreme upturns of four cents a bushel in the value of corn and of $1.75 a barrel for pork resulted.

FINED FOR KEEPING UNLICENSED DOG

Three more men charged with maintaining unlicensed dogs, were brought up in the municipal court today. They were Otto Manthel, Charles Kruse and Fred E. Yungst. Manthel and Yungst both plead not guilty, the latter purchased a license from City Clerk Victor Hemming yesterday afternoon, after the warrant of arrest had been sworn out. Their case was set for Wednesday, August 13. Charles Kruse pled guilty. He was fined $5 and costs or 7 days in the police house for the lookout for other unlicensed dogs. This has served as a warning to some owners of dogs, Victor Hemming said, because some of them within the last few days purchased licenses.

Girls Live Primitive Life in Cave in Mountains

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.) Mt. Carmel, Pa.—Borri pickers on a mountainside near here discovered three scantily clad girls roaming about in the underbrush and after a while saw them enter a cave. The police went to the place and found the girls living a primitive life. They were about sixteen and of foreign extraction. They admitted having lived in the cave a few weeks ago. Clothing was secured to permit their being returned to town. The trio had existed on berries and leaves and were half famished.

Police Use Toothprints to Identify Looter

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.) Huntington, Ind.—Sherlock Holmes was outshone today by Huntington police when they found tooth prints in a green pear near looted cars in the railroad yards. Four youths were held at Ohio City as suspects in the crime. The police sent the pear to the authorities there and they compelled James Glenn to bite into the fruit. His teeth prints matched those already in the pear. Confession followed.

One-Sided Humor.

After the company had gone, Mrs. Mason said to her husband, "What on earth did you mean, John, by telling the Flemings that my humor was positive, but not negative?" "I meant," said Mr. Mason discreetly moving toward the door, "that you could make a joke, but couldn't take one!"

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Aug. 9.—In attempting to swim, partly clothed Ole Braden was drowned in the Cullion pond yesterday afternoon at 5:30. The body was recovered and taken to the Telferson undertaking parlors. Ole was a popular handy man around town. He made his home with a sister, Mrs. Pete Hanson on West street. Besides Mrs. Hanson he leaves two other sisters Mrs. Andrew Holland, Second street and Mrs. J. J. Hagberg on a farm about a mile west of the city and a brother, Julius Johnson, city. He was born in Norway about 45 years ago. Funeral notice will be given later. All freight will be taken after today of this division on account of the strike.

CROPS BENEFIT BY HEAVY RAINS

Corn: The prominent feature this week is the fact that much of the corn belt has had good rains which has materially increased the prospects for a good corn crop. It appears that the dry spell has done only a little damage to corn in some localities in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Nebraska corn still needs rain to insure a maximum crop.

Wheat: All reports confirm the earlier findings on this crop; namely, that it is much lighter and of much poorer quality than originally estimated.

Oats: Most of the oats in the country clearly reflects the results of hot dry weather at the critical stage of its development. For this reason, oats are only fair and of light weight.

Potatoes: This crop has much to be desired. The indications are now, that taken as a whole, the crop will be short.

Apples: Apples promise well in the heavy apple producing sections of the northwest, while in the orchards of the rest of the country they are only light to fair.

Severe dryness is still reported in Montana, Utah, southern Idaho, central and western Washington, and in some sections of Wyoming. Paralleling this, we find dry conditions in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Heavy storm damage is reported from Delaware and Maryland.

It is too wet in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Virginia. This is adversely affecting the cotton crop. In addition, boll weevils are worse than in years.

Rice is an excellent outlook, as is also sweet potatoes.

BRITAIN MAY NAME HIM AMBASSADOR TO UNITED STATES

Marquis of Salisbury.

The Marquis of Salisbury is mentioned in well informed quarters as the man who has been selected to succeed Lord Reading as ambassador from Great Britain to the U. S. The official announcement of the appointment is expected daily. Lord Salisbury is fifty-eight years old and was secretary of foreign affairs from 1900 to 1903.

In a photo exhibit at the Janesville fair, September 1-4. He has obtained a number of snap-shots of pure bred cattle in addition to several pictures of pigs owned by members of the Rock county pure bred pig club for boys and girls. Those having photos which might be used in the exhibit are asked to send them to Mr. Glasco.

The best of the pictures may possibly be used later as illustrations in the leading livestock publications.

More Fun for the Guests. The newlyweds had finally escaped from their friends after much rice throwing, etc., and were speeding on their way in a taxi. But alas! the bridegroom discovered that he had left every cent of his money behind and they had to go back for it, much to the merriment of the wedding guests who had not yet departed.

HONEYMOON IN AERIAL LIMOUSINE IS LATEST FAD

The latest innovation in weddings was inaugurated by Mr. Hamilton and Miss Standen of Chorley Wood, England, who, after their marriage ceremony was performed, left on their honeymoon in an aero-limousine piloted by a trusty aviator. If these air routes become popular for newlyweds it will be hard on the unfed friends who always trail the fleeing couple and throw rice, old shoes and tin cans. It will be nice, however, for the man who only gets a week off for his honeymoon, for he can take his bride around the world in that time by airplane.

Mrs. Hamilton joyfully entering the airplane which carried her on her honeymoon is shown in the picture above; below the airplane can be seen waiting outside the church in readiness for the trip, and at the left is one of the practical joker friends of the groom ready to speed to the next town on his motorcycle to give the happy couple a warm reception.

Pay to Be Agreeable.

It's never too late to prepare for what is left of life. The best gift is to be able to cultivate your agreeable traits of character early in life. Gentleness that blossoms into culture with youth saves many a heartache. But you are never too late to improve. Why use harsh, biting words when gentle ones will do more good? You will feel better and so will everyone else. You don't have to be a fawning courtier. Just be your natural self warmed by the good graces of cultivated manners. They will help you to health, wealth and happiness.—Grit.

Recipe for Rosy Cheeks.—In some parts of England and in France and Italy also it is believed that a girl who buries a drop of her blood under a rose bush will have rosy cheeks.

The Orators.

While it sometimes seems that oratory is now a lost art, we are of the opinion that it is an art that never can be lost. We shall have great orators again. The names and the memories of Demosthenes, Cicero, Paul, Webster and Ingersoll are not forgotten, nor are they likely to be. While the human heart leaps with joy or sinks with sorrow, the orator's forum will be preserved and his power will endure.

MAYOR SAYS AUTOIST WAS ON PROPERTY OF ST. PAUL ROAD

Investigation into the accident which occurred just south of the Monrovia bridge, Thursday evening, in which the car driven by Theodore Richards was damaged shows that according to Mayor T. W. Welsh, the car was being driven on the right of way of the St. Paul road and not on the road.

Mayor T. W. Welsh stated this morning that the St. Paul road had built a side walk along the road last spring but that wagons and cars were driven over the walk until it was all broken. He requested the St. Paul people to rebuild the side walk, which they did at the same time a twelve by twelve was put up to keep people from driving into the right of way. It was this that Mr. Richards struck Thursday evening. The mayor said that he would ask the railroad to replace the twelve by twelve with a fence.

BONDING DECISION EXPECTED MONDAY

Approval by the railroad commission of the proposal to bond the water company of Janesville may be granted Monday, as a result of the hearing at Madison held yesterday afternoon.

Roger Cunningham, city attorney, and Mayor T. W. Welsh appeared before the commission. Cunningham stated that the water company had no opposition from the commission. He stated that the commission had asked the city to do two things. First, to check the improvements which the water company and also the improvements which the city have authorized. It is our hope that they will approve these improvements as reasonable and necessary. Second, as a result of their approving our improvements we wish the authority to borrow $75,000 to carry out the improvements.

While the council asks permission to borrow $75,000 probably not more than $50,000 will be borrowed, Mr. Cunningham stated.

The hearing in time for the council to make the decision at the regular meeting.

SEWERAGE WORK SOON TO START

Construction on the new sewerage in the city will begin just as soon as George W. Mulholland, Rockford, the contractor, can obtain a flat car to load the machinery on. Mr. Mulholland stated that he has ordered the sewer pipes but owing to a labor strike at the Macon Pipe Works, they have been delayed, and will be sent out to this city from the Whitehall Pipe company.

He said that if the car for the machinery arrives today he will be able to start work next week. After the work is once started, Mr. Mulholland said that there would be no delay until all construction is finished.

STRIKE MOVEMENTS FOUND IN GERMANY

Berlin, Friday, Aug. 8.—The government announces the discovery of an extensive secret strike movement, which, if successful, will lead to a general railroad strike in central and perhaps all of Germany on September 1.

Spartacist and communist agitators are charged with being the leaders of the movement.

"The discovery was made just when Germany believed itself quieting down, while the rest of the world roared and struck," the official statement says. "The movement, which is already widespread, began at Brunn, where a huge meeting controlled by communists was held last night, the strike being decided upon."

EXPECT COMPLETE TIE-UP IN NEW YORK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Aug. 9.—The strike of Brooklyn car men, which for three days has virtually stopped traffic on the surface, subway and elevated lines, but failed to make the tie-up equally as complete today.

A few elevated and subway trains were operated during the night, but the service was sporadic and patronage extremely light.

Girl Taken For Stealing Can't Explain Actions

It has never been the policy of the Gazette to withhold the names of persons arrested by the police and taken into court, but in the following story it is thought probable that the young girl's good future is at stake and for that reason alone the name is being withheld.

MARGARET O'BRIEN.
"I don't know why I took all that stuff," sobbed the little girl, "I don't want it. Mama bought me all kinds of clothes for school and I've got a lot more at home."

Evelyn was sitting tailor fashion on the cot in the woman's cell yesterday afternoon. She was a little girl, about 15 years old. She was wearing a neat little gingham dress. The girl has big, brown eyes and curly hair. Just a little kid.

Wednesday that the girl said she came from here from Milton, she came home had brought her make arrangements for the day. She spent the day in the cell, visiting all of the stores, seeing all of the pretty things. Nobody seemed to be watching so she took whatever she wanted. After the first day it was easy. She carried a paper bag. The loot was dumped from the bag into a large suitcase. Friday morning someone took Evelyn off to her home and Eveglyn was left in the police station. She was wearing a pair of pink shoes and a pair of pink stockings. She was wearing a pair of pink shoes and a pair of pink stockings. She was wearing a pair of pink shoes and a pair of pink stockings.

The police have sent her to the city today. By questioning her the police have learned that her folks sent her down to Milton to get her away from a man who was with her. She was determined to stay. She was determined to stay. She was determined to stay.

"I can't go to college now after this has happened," she asked me. "What will they do to me? I gave all the stuff back—I don't want any of it. I guess I took it, I wanted to go home and I wouldn't let me." So home—daddy's going again.

When I left her she said: "They won't make me sleep here alone, will they? I'm afraid in here all alone."

HOME AFTER 5,000 MILE WESTERN TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Earle, Jefferson avenue, have returned from a 5,000 mile motor trip through 13 western states. They toured through Yellowstone National park, visited George Washington Park, and spent several weeks traveling 18 miles on low wheels. Traveling 18 miles on low wheels. Traveling 18 miles on low wheels.

One of the features of their trip, the greatest season," said Mr. Earle today. "Over 300 cars pass through all parts of the United States and Canada."

A few minor tire mishaps formed the only trouble we experienced on the roads which we found to be in excellent condition.

INCREASE VAST AMOUNT OF FOOD IN COLD STORAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Trenton, N. J., Aug. 9.—Vast quantities of food held in the cold storage warehouses of New Jersey, increased by millions of pounds in the month of July, according to a report of the state department of health.

In fresh meats alone, the increase was more than 100,000 pounds, and 1,500,000 pounds more of cheese and butter were stored away.

The enormous amount of food held in storage in the state, according to the report, included 1,443,532 pounds of meat, 7,765,016 pounds of butter, 2,713,254 pounds of fresh meat, 555,885 cases of eggs and 539,670 pounds of milk and milk products.

MORE FIRES THAN IN PREVIOUS YEARS

There were a few more fires during the month of July 1919, than during July, 1918, according to a statement by Fire Chief Cornelius Murphy today. Chief Murphy states that there were 11 fires in July, 1918, and 14 in July, 1919. There was one call for the pullmotor in July, 1919.

GERMANS PROPOSE TO PRESENT IMPORT TAX

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Weimar, Friday, Aug. 8.—The association of states of the old imperial council voted yesterday to present to the national assembly the imperial import tax proposed by Matthias Erzberger, vice premier and minister of finance. This resolution removes the rights of states to impose taxes and was bitterly contested.

This is regarded as a great personal victory for Erzberger. The association of states must approve every bill before it goes to the assembly and its approval often assures the passage of a bill.

PERSHING COMING BACK, REPORTS SAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris, Aug. 9.—It is reported here that General Pershing has been recalled suddenly to the United States and that he may even abandon his visit to King Albert of Belgium planned for Sunday.

Secretary Baker and General March, chief of staff, said today they knew nothing of an order recalling General Pershing to the United States. While House officials said they had not been advised that such an order had gone forward.

CLAIMS GERMANY IS A BROKEN NATION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
London, Aug. 9.—Germany is a broken nation, both in body and spirit, and a long time will elapse before the efficiency of her people is restored, it is declared in a report of British scientists on food conditions in Germany, issued in the form of white papers today. The way time, semi-starvation of the people is responsible for the slowness with which recovery will be effected, according to these authorities.

SUPREME COUNCIL CONSIDERS MESSAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris, Aug. 9.—At today's session of the supreme council of the police conference, consideration was given a message from Alexandre Joseph, head of the new Hungarian government, announcing the intention of his regime to execute the terms of the armistice and asking recognition and authorization to send delegates to Paris. The message received from the archduke outlined the policy of the new government and said that it will call a properly selected constituent assembly to reorganize labor, with a view to increasing production.

BELGIUM WILL RECLAIM FARM LANDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Brussels, Friday, Aug. 8.—The Belgian government has undertaken a vast project for reclaiming devastated farm lands in the battle zone. The farms will be taken over from their owners and worked under the latest scientific principles and then returned to the original owners. Owners are in first class condition. They are to be paid five percent interest on the pre-war valuation of the property during operation by their government.

Famous Balkan Tribe.
The Miralites are perhaps the most interesting tribe in the Balkans. They have remained Christians in spite of all the efforts of the Moslems. They claim their language is the purest of the peninsula—an Aryan tongue much of whose vocabulary is said to resemble classical Greek and Latin, and to be allied with them rather than derived from them. They have always been famed as the finest fighting men in Albania, a country in which most men fight or have fought, and there is no race in the world more independent.

Playing Cards.
Although it is commonly reported that playing cards were invented in France in 1392 to divert Charles VI. D'Allemagne, a French writer on the subject mentions them as being in use in Belgium in 1374, and probably something analogous to them—marked discs or counters—have been employed in the East from remote antiquity. It is now usually thought that it was in Italy playing cards were first made, about 1370, and at Venice.

Great Writer's Wondrous Cane.
One of the famous canes of the world was that of Balzac. It gave him, according to one of his observant contemporaries, "a rapture of self-satisfied vanity. It was as big as a drum major's staff, and was ablaze with rubies, diamonds, emeralds and sapphires. On it was a huge gold knob containing a lock of hair of a lady admirer. Balzac never appeared in public without that stick, and all the jewels that he bought or had presented to him he put into the cane."

NOW, OFFICER, DON'T YOU THINK THE RULES ARE TOO STRICT?

Group of Mack Sennett bathing girls being hauled into court at Coney Island for wearing too scanty attire on the beach.

"Ya may get away with them outfits in California, but this ain't no California," is what the policeman present said when the above group of Mack Sennett bathing girls tripped along the sand on their arrival at Coney Island recently. So he promptly marched them up to Magistrate O'Neil. The magistrate explained that one-piece suits didn't cover enough of one's figure to meet Coney Island requirements and then let them go with a warning to add a dash of goods here and there. Most women folk would be indignant and probably would be indignant to walk, dressed so daintily, with a policeman along the public thoroughfares, but it's all part of the game for these movie stars. ## Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in love with a young man six years my senior.

Whenever I meet him, he always speaks and smiles at me. Do you think he wants to flirt with me? A girl told me he wanted to get acquainted with me. Do you really think he cares for me?

Should I write him or wait for him to write to me?

I love the young man with all my heart and I am crazy to go with him.

CUTIE.

The young man probably has a friendly nature and greets you with a smile as he does every one else. Your girl friend exaggerates, because if he really wanted to go with you, he would make his wish known to you yourself.

Do not write to him first or show in any way that you are eager for his attentions. Remember it is bad form for a girl to seek a man. Do not permit your thoughts to dwell upon your love for the young man; there are so many real things in life worth thinking about.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years old and have gone with a boy off and on for two years. I have never told anybody how much I really care for him, but it seems when I am near him or alone I just feel as if I would do anything that is right for him. Nobody knows how I feel toward him.

He has been a gentleman to me ever since I have known him. Do you think it would be right for me to keep going with him, or do you think I am too young to go with boys?

BONNIE BLUE EYES.

You are really too young to go with boys. Since your parents have permitted it, however, I think it would be all right for you to keep going with him.

A Car Ahead of That

Last week I took a trip from my summer home to the great Metropolis. On the way back to the station, with just about ten minutes in which to catch a train, the trolley I was in started to move again—after the manner of trolleys in which one is trying to catch trains.

I looked out of the window and saw that there was a car ahead of us which for some reason failed to move. Being that I could not see as the track curved sharply at this point.

"Now what," said I to the conductor with the edginess of anxiety in my voice, "is the matter with the car ahead of us?"

He treated me better than I deserved. "We'll wait," said the conductor with much more kindly wrinkle in his eye than my edginess deserved. "I should say it was chiefly that there's a car ahead of that."

How often when we wonder why the trolley ahead of us refuses to move, the trouble is just that there's a car ahead of that. Figuratively, I mean of course.

For instance, somebody is slow in paying you money that is owed you, so you rave against somebody and wonder why he is so dilatory. If you could see around the corner, I wonder if you would not often find that the only trouble with somebody was that somebody else was dilatory in paying him—in other words, "a car ahead of that."

The instinct is to push back. Again, you are in a crowd and you feel someone pushing you. The last thing you want to do is push back resentfully, but the feeling that that person is to blame. But he isn't necessarily to blame any more than you would be if you were swept on and pushed the person in front of you.

And often when someone is late for an appointment, it is a case of "a car ahead of that." True, the delay may be merely the result of carelessness and unwise planning—but then again it may be that the person who is holding you up has been held up all day by others.

I started to add "crossness" to this list and then I stopped and asked myself what I had written. For when a husband comes home and snaps at his wife, it is often because the boss has been giving him a call down—and that is not a habit I want to suggest any justification for, because there isn't any.

He came home with headache and fever, and his cough worse. "Do let me send for Dr. Kelley," pleaded Annie, clasping anxious hands. "I'm afraid you're getting the grip. Bern? Do you ache all over?"

"Don't go fussing," said Bern. "I won't have any doctor. All I've got is a bad cold. Just lemme alone and I'll be all right."

He went to work next day, coughing distressingly, and racked with pain through the lungs. He came home early, and Annie saw by his flushed face and strained look that something more than a mere cold was the matter.

Without waiting for supper he lay down on the couch "for a few minutes' nap," as he said. Now thoroughly frightened, Annie flung on her things and went for Dr. Kelley, the old physician who had always been called in when any of the Margars were sick. His office was six or eight blocks away when Annie got there she found the doctor had recently given up practice and gone away to rest.

"But there's Dr. Byrne," said the woman who opened the door. "He takes care of the old doctor's work. He's in, ma'am."

Dr. Byrne was young and brisk; he agreed to accompany Annie home to have a look at Bern.

"It is probably only a heavy cold," he said, casually. "Or a touch of grip; there's a great deal of it around just now." (To be continued.)

BEACH OUTFIT OF HAND-PAINTED RUBBER WINS APPROVAL OF ULTRA-FASHIONABLE

By ELOISE.

Fashion artists are giving more and more attention to the costumes of those mermaids who prefer to bathe in the warm sands, for they are the ones whose costumes are seen. It has come to the place where no one pays much attention to the costume of the swimmer. She gets attention because she swims and she may wear what she chooses. From a one-piece Annette she chooses. But for the girl who strolls and lounges on the sands there are elaborate and gorgeous beach sets of brilliant hues or dazzling white. Last year these sets usually meant a cape and knitted bag, for knitting was done even on the water's edge, but this year, the bag is omitted and the outfit of the more costly kind include blanket or cape, hat, parasol and cushion.

Here is one of the most attractive sets shown by a New York novelty shop. It is made of white rubber, trimmed with heavy fringe and hand-painted blackbirds. The cape is covered with the little birds and falls in voluminous folds to the ankles. The parasol is trimmed with narrow fringe and is square shaped.

The suit itself, which is really a minor part of this outfit, is made of bright colored jersey with sand-colored braid finishing the neck and waist. The bathing shoes are black and white to match the hat and cape. Surely the water could have no charm for the owner of such a gorgeous beach set.

Bang!

The man dropped the package of books softly upon the floor.

"What the—?" yelled the manager, with a 90 H. start.

"Good morning, sir," said the book agent. "You are Mr. Lifeless Smuggs, are you not?"

"I am NOT!" emphatically replied the manager. "I am Mr. Elphalett Smuggs. If you please, and NOT at your service. Good-day."

"It is a good day, sir. I have here a book on how to improve your memory—seven volumes—bound in baby calf, only ten dollars, Mr. Elephant."

"My name is Elphalett, and if you—"

"As I was saying, these works were compiled by myself when I worked in the dye works, Mr. Lifeboat, and—"

"ELPHALETT!" roared the manager, picking up the ten-quart mugs, legs not threateningly.

"On excuse me, sir. This book is called—"

"I don't want any books, crooks or—"

"Get out!"

"This book is called 'How to Revive Your Memory in Nine Blows'; the second book is entitled 'How Many Blows Needed'—"

"Tells 'Where to Live'—"

"The manager jumped up. 'Will this one blow be enough to make you remember my right name?' Bang!"

And he gave the book agent a lift clean over into the office of the noiseless Chewing Gum company.

Ladies Should Work.

An eminent writer observes that the ultimate effect of getting nurtured women being forced to do their own housework will be the appearance of a new race of women, more intelligent, more energetic, more capable of doing anything.

ANSWER—Queer, but most of the nervous women seem to have a case of nervous breakdown.

Enemas. I should be glad to see an article by you on the subject of the habitual use of enemas of water to move the bowels.

(M. E. P.)

ANSWER—It is far worse than any cathartic habit. It is the most unnatural means of stimulating bowel function. It creates in time a physical dependence which is hard to remedy. It often causes permanent dilation of the bowel. It does not "cleanse" the bowel better than an ordinary physic.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Peach Dumplings.—Two cups of flour, one tablespoon salt, two teaspoons of baking powder, one-quarter cup of butter, three-quarters cup of milk, peaches.

Sift dry materials four times. Cut in butter, add milk. Lastly add beaten eggs. Roll in well floured pastry board. Cut with three-inch biscuit cutter. Make a dent in each dumpling and lay a sweetened half of peach in each. Bake 20 minutes in quick oven. Five minutes before taking out of the oven pour one cup of syrup over dumplings. This makes a fine short-cake crust, too.

Chili Con Carne.—One pound hamburger steak, two onions, one can kidney beans, one quart tomatoes, red pepper salt, two tablespoons shortening.

Put shortening in frying pan, cut up the onions and fry. Add hamburger until done, stirring often. Then add beans and tomatoes. Season. This should be highly seasoned. Some use noodles in place of beans.

Mustard Dressing.—One peck of beans, six large onions, one quart vinegar, three cups of sugar, one tablespoon salt, three tablespoons of flour, two jars of mustard.

Cook vinegar, sugar, salt and flour, thickening until thick. Mash onions and mix mustard with them so it will not curd (the onions should be cooked first). Then stir onions and the mixture into vinegar (which have been cooked until tender) and bring to a boil. Can.

DISCOVERIES.
Paper Hat Bags.—Ordinary large paper hat bags, with a hole cut in the center of the bottom and pulled over waists, hung from a hanger, will keep them fresh and clean. It is also a good use to make of old and odd-sized pillow cases in like manner. Regular dustproof paper bags may be purchased for all clothing, which will soon pay for themselves in keeping the clothes clean.

The Dining-room.—Underneath the dining-room table should always be found a small hassock or footstool for the mother or the child or nose feet just miss the floor. Mother is wonderful rested by bringing her feet from the floor, where there is less strain and no rush of blood to them. Children are often restless at the table for the same reason.

Fur.—Save all the waxed paper from bread and groceries and use on the ironing board for smoothing the fur. The fur on them gives the fur a fine, smooth surface, besides cleaning them.

To Prevent Mold.—To prevent mold from forming on top of the liquid in which pickles are kept, put in a few pieces of horseradish root.

A Meat Substitute.—Add a cup of chopped peanuts and two eggs to cornmeal mush and beat smooth. Turn into molds and when cold slice and fry in bacon fat.

Potatoes are served with meat in order to neutralize the acids. One potato will neutralize the acids of two slices of roast beef. While rice is a substitute for potatoes it only provides the starch and in order to obtain the potassium necessary for neutralizing the acids you should include cabbage, beans, celery, milk, apples or prunes in the meal.

The favor of chocolate ice cream can be greatly improved by adding a quarter teaspoonful of cinnamon to each gallon.

Give the back of the mirror two coats of silver aluminum paint such as is used on radiators. Then hang or paste a black cloth over the back. When cooking vegetables keep the saucepan uncovered if you desire to serve them in their original color.

Elks Will Remodel.
Appleton. The Elks are planning an addition to their club house which will have four more bowling alleys and a room in the nature of a palm garden where ice cream and soft drinks will be served.

Board Organized.
Madison. The new Wisconsin real-estate board created by act of the legislature was organized with the election of Tom O. Nathan, Cumberland, as president and C. J. Wildner, Supervisor, as treasurer. Under the terms of the law B. G. Packer, commerce commissioner is the secretary of the new commission and application forms will be prepared and submitted to some of the leading real estate organizations of the state to give suggestions. The law provides that the license of a real estate dealer may be revoked for any false statement in the application.

FORTUNE'S WHEEL SLIPS.

Annie's re-start into tenement life was made gaily so to say. She had not in her mind a clear picture of what Bernie's $14 would buy. The glamour of the up-town flat—tense, but modern—was still upon her. She dwelt more on having had it than on losing it. It was rather a proof of life's kept promise than the betrayal of hopes. If it had existed, it would again, for facts are only viewpoints after all. She was young. Love was still warm. The novelty of marriage, motherhood and housewifery was keen and fresh. Of course, she realized there would have to be strict economies. But there was zest in thrift, satisfaction in making little go far. Besides, she was used to it and knew how.

She had every intention of keeping a clean, cozy home in her grimy tenement. The dreariness of the street should be shut out. Whatever dirt, whatever confusion of washbuds, unmade beds, soiled dishes, littered floors and baby's babies existed in the neighbors' flats, should form no part of her existence. She and Bernie and Robbie would live in a poor but clean and sunny little world of their own.

She was mildly disturbed when Bernie came home from work "feeling punk" from his cold. But it was a wifely pleasure to run to the drug-store at Avenue A and get some of that time, rush back and make a pitcher of steaming lemonade, dose Bernie well, wrap him in their warmest bed things and watch him go off to sleep, murmuring of her "sure be O. K. in the morning."

He awoke early next day, saying he was a lot better, and set out as usual for work. There was more standing out in the wind-scoured street that day, seeing of the loaded trucks checking his shipments, correcting the making of a case of goods here, seeing that a wrong box was hauled off a wagon there, and all the while he kept sneezing and feeling more and more "like a deuce."

He came home with headache and fever, and his cough worse. "Do let me send for Dr. Kelley," pleaded Annie, clasping anxious hands. "I'm afraid you're getting the grip. Bern? Do you ache all over?"

"Don't go fussing," said Bern. "I won't have any doctor. All I've got is a bad cold. Just lemme alone and I'll be all right."

PHRENOLOGY.

A table-rapping medium of considerable prominence and generally acclaimed power told me the other day how she had consciously worked the table for years, bringing out the voices of raps or cracks to convince one of her dearest friends of the actuality of spirit manifestations!

Old Gall, who fathered the phrenology business, was well named. It took something of the kind to put such a figure before the public even in the halcyon times antedating the scientific establishment of cerebral localization.

Phrenology, which is the science of the mind; physiology, which is the science of body function, and pathology, which is the science of disease, combine to discredit the so-called "mediums" of the phrenologist. The empirical, wholly imaginary localization of the various faculties by phrenology has been quite upset by modern science.

A phrenological diagnosis of character or capacity, therefore, or a phrenological prognosis as to an individual's proper calling or gifts is just as valuable as the bumcombe clairvoyant or gypsy fortune-teller hands out to the gullible victim, who has the necessary four bits.

Physiological investigations conducted by means of animal experimentation have demonstrated the localization of the controlling centers of many functions. And, what is more to the point, these animal experiments have been practically proved by tests made and by the results obtained in surgery of the brain. All that is definitely and demonstrably known is that cerebral localization merely goes to show that the empiric localization of the phrenologists is the veriest hokus-pokus, even though it be founded on the theories of great thinkers of antiquity.

Phrenology is to physiology what astrology is to astronomy, a sort of Arabian Nights appeal to childish imagination, which is calculated to please about 10 per cent of us who never mentally outgrow the age of 10.

GOVERNOR PHILIPP WANTS REDUCED RATES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 9.—Gov. E. L. Philipp is now in Washington for the purpose of trying to secure a one-cent fare for the returned soldiers to attend the reunion of Wisconsin troops at Milwaukee during the State fair next month, and to save the railroad taxes to the state.

Ever since it was decided several weeks ago to hold a reunion of all returned Wisconsin soldiers, sailors and marines in Milwaukee during the State fair, efforts have been made by Gov. Philipp and others to secure the one-cent fare for those in uniform from the United States Railroad administration, but little encouragement has been received from Washington and the Governor decided to go to Washington in person for a consultation on the matter.

Whether or not it is a political move to insure the government ownership of the railroads or to permit the government control is a disputed question, even in Washington, but the plan is being vigorously opposed by Governor Philipp and other executives who have learned of the movement. It will probably be made the subject of considerable discussion at the Governor's conference in Salt Lake city week after next.

Should the plan of the railroad administration go through it would withdraw more than $5,000,000 annually from Wisconsin, which is now required in taxes from the railroads and would compel a like amount to be raised by general taxation on the property in the state to meet state expenses.

The Awakening of China is Shown by Active Propaganda

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
Washington—China is awakening! The young Chinese, a party made up very largely of the men who have been sent away from the Celestial kingdom to foreign universities and colleges, have made it clear to the Chinese government that if ever their nation is to take its place in the sun, the aims, aspirations, ambitions and ideals of China must be made known to the American people and to the world.

For the past two years China has employed a corps of trained writers, English, Chinese and American, who have prepared special articles on trade and commercial opportunities in China. They have pointed out that the 455,000,000 inhabitants of China constitute the greatest army of customers for western products that the world has to offer, and they have sought to show that while the Chinese people must be taught to use American goods, the American people must also be taught to provide the goods that the Chinese can use at prices that will suit the rather meagre purses of Chinese customers.

But this propaganda work is now to be largely increased through the medium of motion pictures, and the Chinese embassy in Washington is now preparing to send out a set of motion pictures showing the life and customs of China, which will be explained to audiences in all the big cities of the United States by lecturers whose hands and knowledge of Chinese conditions will enable them to speak with authority. The Chinese government has set aside a sum of a million dollars to further this work which is expected to add greatly in maintaining that "open door" policy on trade with China which alone will enable the country to develop along Occidental lines.

Sweet Kabbage Goes From Sauerkraut to Hoosegow

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
Port Wayne, Ind.—It may be an antithesis, but Frank Sweetkabbage was found in a car of sauerkraut and arrested on a vagrancy charge. And, speaking of cognomens, this is not a pi line, but a real name: Polybius Pappathodon, amounting to "opulous." That is, it was a real name. It's that way in the city directory, but Mr. Pa, etc., had it cut down to Anaspos. That's simpler. He's a Greek and in all the 16 years he's been in America he hasn't found anybody who could pronounce it the long way.

The Joys of Motoring; Exhaust Pipe Fires Wheat

WHIRLWIND CHANGES NOTED ON MARKET

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 9.—Whirlwind changes of prices extending to bewildering limits and accompanied by alternate general stampedes to sell or to purchase, marked the close of trading.

This week on the board of trade was as full of excitement as an equal period during the world war. Corn paraded in price this morning from 7 3/4c decline to 3/4c advance; others were down 1 3/4c to 2 1/4c and provisions off $1.80 to $4.

Widening agitation against high cost of necessities kept the corn market on the down grade until holders of all grain and provisions were in a state of semi-panic and there had been a shrinkage of 32c a bushel in the value of corn. Frantic buying ensued the instant that opportunity offered after the announcement that the government policy as to wheat would not be altered except by selling flour for domestic use at a reduction of about $1 a barrel. Railroad strike troubles, which to a large degree brought the movement of cereals to a halt, were responsible for much of the subsequent tension in the corn market.

In oats the governing factors were nearly identical with those which ruled corn.

The provisions trade was all but paralyzed by race riots and the developments of the campaign against high prices.

Coon Hunt is Staged in Aristocratic Thoroughfare
(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
Newport, R. I.—The monkey dinner, the master stroke of diversion introduced by Harry Lehr, now gives way to the coon hunt for society's excitement in these "dry" times. The hunt was staged along Bellevue avenue. A fat, but agile, raccoon, which escaped from the estate of Paul J. Rainey, the African explorer, was the principal factor in this skit. The rest of the cast was made up of Rainey servants, summer fashionables and merry villagers, and the usual children's chorus. The coon leaped along the aristocratic avenue, dodging motors and causing debutantes to skip with hosiery revelations added. The pursuit swelled, the coon bounded on, then streaked up a friendly tree. Henry Nelson, with the advantage of a bicycle was in the van of the chase. Henry journeyed up the tree and came down with the coon.

Three-Wheeled Taxi for Sharp Corners of London

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)
London—The taxi which skids London's sharp corners on two wheels is to have a rival in a new car that runs on the straightaway even if on only three. ## —that Display the "Sign of the Red Can"

THE "Sign of the Red Can" signifies a Wadhams filling station. It identifies a garage owner who has elected to sell his patrons the gasoline of long-run economy because he has seen the evils that follow the use of an inferior grade.

From jobs brought to his own shop, he has seen apparently low priced motor fuel cost a mighty high total. He has taken down motors that were hopelessly racked by the continual missing of a weak, slow-firing, near-gasoline. He has drained many a crank case of "lubricating oil"—of a mixture that was originally lubricating oil but which became so diluted with the kerosene contained in "cracked" gasoline that it could offer no protection to bearings. He has ground from valves quantities of power-wasting carbon that were out of all proportion to mileage secured.

The garage owner or dealer who displays the "sign of the red can" has not been content to offer you merely a better gasoline—he has chosen to sell the cleanest, most powerful gasoline on the market—honest, old-fashioned, straight-run Wadhams True Gasoline. It seems reasonable to believe that his gasoline policy indicates his garage as a pretty good place to go—for any service that a garage can render.

THE DOT DRAWING CLASS

"This history of Salem reminds me of the letter 'S' every time I see it," said the Dot Drawing teacher. "Salem is a wonderful old town and if you read the first letter in the alphabet it is probably the youngest. And then 'S' would be the oldest letter. But I am going to spend any time reading the history this morning, but am going to let you draw an 'S' and, if you draw very carefully, maybe you can make the letter look like a very old man."

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

On Friday evening of last week, the advance advertising cars were side-tracked in the St. Paul yards at the same time. One was No. 1, which is known as the first advance car with the manager and two bill posters, and belonged to the Ringling and Barnum show. They were on their way to Madison and only stopped over at Janesville long enough to be transferred from one train to another. The other was No. 1 advertising car of the Walter L. Main show. They were on their way to Beloit, where they show Saturday night. This car stayed over night in Janesville and was not taken over to Beloit until 11:15 the next day. I was shown all through the car, which was one of the most complete and best arranged cars that I have ever seen.

The manager had a state room and a private office, a dining room and a kitchen in care of a high-class chef or blow-down of any kind, and a comfortable quarters, and the manager told me that at times they carry as high as 25 tons of paper. If the routes out of the towns in which they show were not good, the manager, the night before, would give orders to the chef to have breakfast at 5 o'clock sharp, and before 6 o'clock all the bill posters on the country routes were on their way, and many times everything would be done by 5 or 6 o'clock in the afternoon and the car ready for the next town. All of these advance cars carry from 10 to 25 tons of paper for the billboards in case of a strike or a tie-up of any kind on the railroads. With the great Ringling and Barnum show, they carry three advance cars carrying from 10 to 25 tons and many tons of paper. All of their advertising routes are always gone over three times in case of accidents of any kind, or heavy rains or blow-downs of any kind, and No. 3 advertising car is the last one to look everything over before the coming of the show.

As a rule the newspaper men of the show for the most part, travel on either of these cars and every few days will drop back to the show many times for new orders or to consult with the Ringlings, or with their manager.

But all this is vastly different from what it was my first year in the business in '18, when George K. Steele, the advance agent, who drove over the country with the show, had a single horse and covered wagons filled with advertising paper, drawn by two horses, and two bill-posters, made up the entire advance of the show. Steele had a limited stock of $300 for the erection of a billboard in any town, and very often it would not amount to half that. In many of the western towns there were no billboards, and no one to take licenses; hence, if there were any, were covered with billis announcing the coming of the show, and all along the road, they would leave bills at the farm houses. Many times the show would take in more than $2,000 in one day, with the local expense less than $100. But those were primitive days, and Kansas and Nebraska were wild, with but few towns, and these many miles apart. In '18 the Burr Robbins show, which was a wagon show drawn over the road by a hundred and forty horses, never missed a stand, and only one day that we got in so late it was impossible to give but one show.

With the Adam Forepaugh show every contract was made before the show with the three different advertising cars. Everything had to be sent back to me and I had to take time to look over every contract and see if there was anything out of the ordinary that would need looking after on the arrival of the show. With the big envelopes of contracts to be looked over every day, the signing of the tickets, the paying of the bills, and two salary days every week, and with but one man to do it all, it was certainly a work house from early in the morning until late at night.

The great Ringling and Barnum combined shows opened today on the lake front in Chicago, where they will remain nine days. This is probably the first show to open under canvas on the lake front for many years. They contribute five percent of the gross receipts to different charities in Chicago. This is to be looked after by different committees in the city.

A CIRCUS ANTHOLOGY.

The Lithographer.

(By SAM J. BANKS.)
The circus lithographer am I.
In the weeks immediately preceding show day.

You may see me going about the town
With two long, slender sticks
And a large bundle of lithographs.
I meander about the town.
I have a faculty for finding "empties."

Stores or offices which are vacant.
Every square inch of the windows of these places
I cover with gaudy lithographs.
With my two sticks
I hang 'em "high and straight."
Not only must I know
How to hang lithographs,
I must also know how to talk.
I must be able to sell and initiate—
For I must put my posters
Not only in "empties,"
I must put most of them
In the windows of occupied stores—
To some instances in windows
Of select stores.
Sometimes in bank windows!

Lowth, is most efficient and is devoted to the work in all its phases, special attention being given to the practical phases of instruction which will help the amateur teacher over the difficult places of her career and give her inspiration toward constantly higher aims and nobler ambitions.

Teachers of Rock County Are Products of Training School

(By MRS. ABBIE HELMS.)

That nearly half the teachers of rural schools in Rock county are graduates of the Rock county training school will be news to many and yet it is a fact. Also, that about 350 young ladies have received special training during the summer session of the school, and that the school has graduated 150 teachers during the eight years of its existence, has held numerous conferences and teachers' institutes, and has made of itself an indispensable part in the education of this county. It has just closed a summer session lasting from June 23 until August 1, which has been especially successful, not only in that it has graduated 150 teachers, but also from the earnest desire to improve the opportunity shown by the young people. The hours of study have been from 8:30 to 3:30, with an hour for lunch. The purpose of this session is to afford teachers a chance to make up on subjects in which they are lacking, so that they may secure higher grade certificates. Certain subjects are required for these certificates, but inside these limits the pupils may take what they choose.

There have been some changes made in the law for certifying teachers. The average age of the teachers at the close of the summer session has been about 25 years, while that of the pupils of the regular training school averages 13 or 14 years. The pupils of this school from all over Rock county, and especially from the towns of Beloit, Janesville, Edgerton, Milton and Clinton. The percentage from Janesville is relatively small, considering the enrollment. The school has offered the young people to receive this training while residing at home. High school girls especially who intend to teach should consider that the training school, followed by a year at normal school, would give them a practical and efficient education for the business of teaching.

And that this basis has been formerly is shown by the increase in salaries noted during the past year. Practically the lowest salaries paid are $65 a month for the first year, and $85 a month, with $3 for the next, thus encouraging long continued work for teachers in one community.

One of the problems in rural school districts is to provide for the best pieces of the teachers. Rock county is pretty well supplied with large farm homes and the question is not as serious here as in many parts of the state.

Another problem of the training school is to provide homes for the girls here in the city while attending school, where they can live cheaply or pay part of their board in the home. They are a reliable, steady class of educated young women and in many capacities, especially in attending to young children, are invaluable.

The school year begins on Sept. 2, and the prospects for a full attendance seems very promising, more pupils having registered at this time than at any other like date since the school began. Many pupils come and go from Beloit and return every day on the interurban; others reside at Milton and go back and forth.

The school year lasts six weeks, with short holidays at Christmas and Easter, and many special occasions are observed during the year. A luncheon is usually served to the county board as well as the domestic science course, sometime during the season, and exercises given by the model school help to keep up the interest in the school work.

FIRST GLIMPSE OF EARLY FALL HATS SHOWS SIMPLE DESIGNS

Here is the first hint that summer is drawing to a close—the early fall hats are beginning to appear on the scene. Simplicity in design seems to be the outstanding feature of the new hats, and dress fabrics seem to be used as much as they were in the summer millinery. Fabrics of duvetyne and velours are destined to be in high favor. Here is a group of four hats which shows the trend of the new fashions and the variety of styles. At the upper left is a smart shape of taupe, beaver cloth with its crown interwoven with velvet ribbon. To the right of it is the ever popular velvet turban with a new tilt, which makes it more modish than ever. At the left below is a youthful tulle hat of brown duvetyne faced with silk. It has a rather high crown and is trimmed with a broad band and bow of grain ribbon. Perhaps one of the most practical hats of the four is the one at the lower right. It is a large sailor with a rollin brim and is made of navy georgette and folds of navy satin ribbon. A pert little bow at the right side of the brim completes it.

NINE PLAYHOUSES CLOSED BY STRIKE

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 8.—Nine playhouses in the Broadway theatrical district have been closed, three are practicing abbreviated programs, while seven have been able to defy the strike order of the actors equity association and give their advertised bills with complete casts. In addition to the theaters closed, it was estimated that rehearsals of 30 plays were being held up.

Managers announced today that suit would be brought against the Actors association as such and against the actors individually for breaking the contract. The unusual sight of a prominent actor picketing a "scab" theatre and entertaining a crowded sidewalk audience with stunts gives an added public interest in the strike.

The ROMANCE of BUSINESS

The story of Norma Hastings, a prosperous young woman dentist, who once thought she was a failure because she could not muster short-hand.

"How did you ever happen to choose your profession?" is invariably the first question which Norma Hastings, D. D. S., must answer before she begins S. on her new patient's left molar or buccisid. And it is little wonder, for women dentists are not numerous, and when they are, everyone becomes interested in them. The young doctor always giggles, yes, giggles, is the word, for she is a very feminine young person, despite her calling. "I guess it's because I was too stupid to be a stenographer."

"Of course, this leaves the patient very near to the exact truth. When Norma was a young girl attending one of the large high schools in a large city, she, like most other girls, never thought of a dentist or dentist's assistant when she had the toothache and then her thoughts were not kindly ones. When she finished high school she did not know just what to do. Most of her friends were going on to college, but Norma could not afford to do this and so after consulting about a bit trying to find an aim in life she decided to go to business school.

Disgusted with Short-hand.
Her first week was one of terror, according to her own account of it. "I was miserable little short-hand figure," she called them, danced before her eyes all day and haunted her at night, but she could never recall the right one at the right time. Each night she would decide to leave school and go to work and each night her family would persuade her to return. Finally she gave up trying to master the dots, dashes and curves and she merely went to school, put in the time, and went home, even at night with nothing gained. Parties and dances were so much more fun and she was supposed to be learning her life's work.

Then one day everything changed. Her father died suddenly and left the family with little money, and many debts. Norma had to leave school. "Had my father lived, or left us

Well, here is one of his Expert Conclusions—that the Best Sermons are not Preached, but are LIVED.

Something you can Lamp for Yourself is always a lot more impressive than something the other Guy tells you. They may Lecture about the Buzzsaw and all that, but you Give them the Hoot until you actually see some Bird fool with it and Exit shy a couple of Digits. They may Speed to you about Going Straight, but you'll Smile until you Pipe a Regular Guy who's Going That Way—and then you'll Doff the Kelly.

What I'm trying to Spill for the Chatter about is the case of the Big Fellow who Passed Along in Boston, my good old Pal, John L. When they Turn Out to Plant a Scrapper—or anybody else—with the On-the-Level Regret that they Handled to John's memory, there must be something To that one. And there Sure Was to old Sully.

The chier thing about John was that he was a Square Guy—and I think that Those Higher Up will Grab the Mitts of such persons and Pass them Along.

TRUE STORIES of SUCCESSFUL WOMEN

with money and no debts, today, I should probably hold the record as the city's slowest stenographer, for I was well on the road to the title," she laughingly says when speaking of her career.

Becomes Dentist's Assistant.
She and her sister both left school and started to work to help the family recover financially. Norma happened to get work as assistant in the office of a prominent dentist. It was not long before she became intensely interested in her work. Even before she realized it herself she was thinking more of work and less of money. She started taking dental magazines and reading up on dentistry in the library and while she was doing it she was unconscious of any effort on her part. She was merely doing it because she found with the interest that other girls watch their favorite hero on the movie screen. She asked questions about everything she did not understand. The dentist appreciated her interest and her work, but he thought she was merely an especially conscientious person. But one day he discovered her and she discovered herself.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs of Last Week

(By MRS. ABBIE HELMS.)

Authentic pictures made by the French government of the signing of the peace treaty are now being shown here. The prominent people in the act of signing the document are shown very clearly.

There is evidently a shortage of help in Washington, D. C., as there are appeals made on the screen for employees, both men and women, to work in that city. Especially are typists and stenographers mentioned in that connection. Pictures of American athletes winning honors in events staged in the Pershing stadium abroad continue to arrive and arouse much interest in the audiences viewing them.

A wonderful picture was shown as the leading attraction at the Apollo this week in which Blanch Sweet does some very remarkable emotional work. It is called "The Impassable Sea," which term signifies the terrible way in which Germany through her soldiers treated the women and children of the conquered countries. She has a dual role, that of one sister living in San Francisco, and of another sister who, being abroad with her mother at the time of the war, was taken into Belgium. They were unable to get out of the country and were subjected to horrible degradation by the German soldiers. The sister in America determines to go abroad to find out what has become of them, and is hastily married to a doctor who has become interested in her. He goes in the capacity of Belgium relief work, and so they are able to travel about that country, and many of the scenes of war time destruction are shown by them in their wanderings. Some refugee children are worked into the scenes to give human interest, and one clever little lad helps them to escape when the time comes. Of course the brutal German officers are in evidence, and when she finally finds the sister and mother, the sister has died of privation and ill-treatment. An exciting chase across the country follows in the windup, and brisk fighting by both Holland and Belgian soldiers are part of the last scenes. Some fine bits of acting are given by Tom Moore the hero and the technique of the arrangement is of high order. People who see this picture will find it hard to forgive Germany her sins.

A clever takeoff on the supposed strife between capital and labor was given as a Sunday play at the Beverly in "The Uplifters." May Allison was a high class private secretary when she was drawn into the ranks of a labor organization supposed to be working for the uplift of mankind. She was put at the most menial occupation and treated abominably before she discovered their duplicity, and that her capitalist lover was not so bad after all. Florence Reed does some wonderful acting in "Wives of Men," seen the first of the week at this playhouse. As a young, light-hearted girl finding her husband mourning over the picture of a woman who calls him husband, she turns from him, though later trying to win him by every art she possesses. It is only when she rescues his young son from degradation and misery and wins his love, that her husband comes back to her.

Bessie Barriscale gives a fine picture of mother love in "Tangled Threads," in which she, too, is desperately trying to win back a recalcitrant son. She persuades a man friend to pretend to make love to her, but he traps her into a compromising situation, so that her husband divorces her and marries his new flame. Later the wife is aroused to his despicable position, confesses his share to the husband, and taking the new wife for a ride, runs his automobile over a cliff, killing them both. Bessie meanwhile has nursed her young son back to health, and is restored to her home.

Madge Kennedy is demure innocent in her comedy role in "The Baby Mine," seen at the Majestic. Her husband is jealous and altogether unreasonable and finally leaves home. To get him back she sends him word that they supposed arranged to them a son and makes up her mind to have a child. The husband hurries home before he is expected and a devoted friend has to steal the baby to get him there on time. The devoted friend of the baby and the conspirators hire a twin baby. The fond father discovers the three and believes himself the father of triplets. The mother is arrested for kidnapping, the mother of the baby and the father of the triplets are all arrested, and complications ensue until the matter is explained and things straightened out.

George Walsh was featured in another very funny comedy drama Monday entitled "Help, Help, Police," in which the intricacies of business deals in connection with a safety razor merger were depicted.

The big event of the week at this sketch, "Sunnyside," in this he is shown in the country doing the tasks on a farm in his own inimitable way. He brings in the hen to lay her egg in the frying pan, and drives the cow into the kitchen to milk her. He imitates the elaborate costume and manners of the city dude who has captured the affections of his sweetheart. The production was witnessed by large audiences.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

There is an English soldier woman who is doing something for her country and for the men who fought for her, which American society women might well follow. The lady is Lady Angela Forbes, owner of Silver Badge Farm at Brentwood, in Essex, England. Lady Angela, while very active during the war, has been very active in her friends who did not cease her work when the war ended, but continued her services in another field.

She worked out a plan whereby she might aid disabled soldiers. She is a first and third at the Royal Agricultural shows recently, and so she decided to employ only disabled soldiers on her farm of 24 acres. At present 20 men are employed on the farm and Lady Angela personally supervises their instruction in general farm work, market gardening and poultry raising. When the war ended, she learned something about farming from her usual able to get jobs on other estates and thus Lady Angela has room for new men. Her farm is like a school and hospital combined, for the health and strength while working the land and then pass on, and new ones enter.

BRITISH WOMEN LOSE JOBS.
It is no longer sex prejudice which bars the way to equality among laboring men and women in England, but a real fear that there are more men than jobs. The grave danger is that this fear will result in a movement to deprive women from any well paid work. Such a movement would of course be a menace not only to women but to all workers in that it would tend to re-enforce the miserable practice by which women are driven to underact and spoil the market.

The present crisis, moreover, entirely from new careers which they had taken up. In Lancashire occurs, particularly hard case of exclusion. A magneto industry has been established on the labor of women. The women liked the work and the firm wished to go on employing them. In this instance there was no question of reinstating men, but the women, dispirited by the war, had been entirely out of unemployment in the engineering trades of the district the killed engineering trades held a new meeting and decided that the women must continue work.

This uncompromising attitude on the part of the men may be prompted by a suspicion that many of the women are sliding on to positions which are not entirely dependent on their earnings. This of course would apply less to engineering trades than to clerical work. It is in fact one of the specifically mentioned grievances of the discharged soldiers in England that the government is still employing "flappers" in face of the unemployment of hundreds of adult male clerks.

Daily Newspaper.

Marquette.—Ironwood, Mich., the metropolis of the Gogabic Iron range, is soon to have a daily newspaper. The promoters of the enterprise are Howard A. Quirt, formerly city editor of the Eagle Star of this city, and Frank E. Noyes, publisher of the Eagle Star, who will have charge of a controlling interest in the company. Mr. Quirt will be in active charge of the newspaper.

Again there was a silence, while the Major stared at his grandson, aghast. But Eugene began to laugh cheerfully. "I'm not sure he's wrong about automobiles," he said. "With all their speed forward they may be a step backward to civilization—that is, in spiritual civilization. But automobiles have come, and they bring a greater change in our life than most of us suspect. They are going to alter war, and they are going to alter peace. I think men's minds are going to be changed in subtle ways because of automobiles; just how, though, I could hardly guess. Perhaps, ten or twenty years from now, if we can see the inward change in men by that time, I shouldn't be able to defend the gasoline engine, but would have to agree with him that automobiles had no business to be invented." He laughed good-naturedly and, looking at his watch, apologized for having an engagement which made his departure necessary when he would much prefer to linger, and left them at the table. Isabel turned wondering, hurt eyes good-night, she remained in the open doorway with her hand upon his shoulder and her eyes thoughtfully lowered, so that her wish to say something more than good-night was evident. Not less obvious was her perplexity about the manner of saying it; and George, divining her thought, amiably made an opening for her.

"Well, old lady," he said, indulgently, "you needn't look so worried. I won't be tactless with Morgan again. After this I'll just keep out of his way."

"Dear," she said, "I wish you'd tell me something: Why don't you like Eugene?"

"Oh, I like him well enough," George returned, with a short laugh, as he sat down and began to unlace his shoes. "I like him well enough—in his place."

"No, dear," she said hurriedly. "I've had a feeling from the very first that you didn't really like him—that you really never liked him. I can't understand it, dear; I don't see what can be the matter."

"Nothing's the matter." This easy declaration naturally failed to carry great weight, and Isabel went on, in her troubled voice: "It seems so queer, especially when you feel as you do about his daughter."

At this, George stopped unlacing his shoes abruptly, and sat up. "How do I feel about his daughter?" he demanded.

"Well, it's seemed—as if—as if—Isabel began to say. "It did seem—at least, you haven't looked at any other girl ever since they came here, and—certainly you've seemed very much interested in her. Certainly, you've been very kind friends?"

"Well, what of that?" "It's only that I'm like your grandfather. I can't see how you could be so much interested in a girl—and not feel very pleasantly toward her father."

"Well, I'll tell you something," George said slowly, and a frown of concentration could be seen upon his brow, as from a profound effort at self-examination. "The truth is, I don't believe I've ever thought of the two together, exactly—at least, not until lately. I've always thought of Lucy just as Lucy, and of Morgan just as Morgan. I've always thought of her as a person herself, not as anybody's daughter. If I have a friend, I don't see that it's incumbent upon me to like my friend's relatives. Now, suppose I have certain ideas or ideals which I have chosen for the regulation of my own conduct in life. Suppose some friend of mine has a relative with ideals directly the opposite of mine, and my friend believes more in the relative's ideals than in mine: Do you think I ought to give up my own just to please a person who's taken up ideals that I really despise?"

"No, dear; of course people can't give up their ideals; but I don't see what this has to do with dear little Lucy and—"

"I didn't say it had anything to do with them," he interrupted. "I was merely putting a case to show how a person would be justified in being a friend of one member of a family and feeling anything but friendly toward another. I don't say, though, that I feel unfriendly to Mr. Morgan. I don't say that I feel friendly to him, and I don't say that I feel unfriendly; but if you really think that I was rude to him tonight—"

"Just thoughtless, dear. You didn't see that what you said tonight—"

"Well, I'll not say anything of that sort again where he can hear it. There, isn't that enough?"

"But, George," she said earnestly, "you would like him, if you'd just let yourself. You say you don't dislike him. Why don't you like him? I can't understand at all. What is it that you don't—"

"There, there!" he said. "It's all right, and you toddle along."

"But, George—"

"Now, now! I really do want to get into bed. Good-night, old lady."

"But, George, dear—"

"I'm going to bed, old lady; so good-night."

Thus the interview closed perforce. She kissed him again before going slowly to her own room, her perplexity evidently not dispersed; but the subject was not renewed between them the next day or subsequently. Nor did Fanny make any allusion to the cryptic approbation she had bestowed upon her nephew after the Major's "not very successful" little dinner.

He successfully avoided contact with Lucy's father, though Eugene came frequently to the house, and spent several evenings with Isabel and Fanny; and sometimes persuaded them and the Major to go for an afternoon's motoring. He did not, however, come again to the Major's Sunday evening dinner, even when George Amberson returned. Sunday evening was the time, he explained, for going over the week's work with his factory managers.

When Lucy came home the autumn was far enough advanced to smell of burning leaves, and for the annual editorials, in the papers, on the purple haze, the golden branches, the ruddy fruit, and the pleasure of long tramps in the brown forest. George had not heard of her arrival, and he met her, on the afternoon following that event, at the Sharons', where he had gone in the secret hope that he might hear something about her. Janie Sharon had just begun to tell him that she heard Lucy was expected home soon, after having "a perfectly gorgeous time"—information which George received with no responsive enthusiasm—when Lucy came demurely in, a proper little autumn figure in green and brown.

"George, dear!" she said, "What did you mean?"

upon her son. "George, dear!" she said, "What did you mean?"

"Just what I said," he returned, lighting one of the Major's cigars. Isabel's hand, pale and slender, upon the tablecloth, touched one of the fine silver candlesticks; and the fingers were caressing it tremulously. "Oh, he was hurt!" she murmured.

"I don't see why he should be," George said. "I didn't say anything about him. What made you think he was hurt?"

"I know him!" was all of her reply, half-whispered.

The Major stared hard at George from under his white eyebrows. "You didn't mean him," you say, George? I suppose if we had a clergyman as a guest here you'd expect him not to be offended, and to understand that your remarks were neither personal nor unkind if you said the church was a nuisance and ought never to have been invented. We seem to have a new kind of young people these days. It's a new style of courting a pretty girl, certainly, for a young fellow to go deliberately out of his way to try and make an enemy of her father by attacking his business! By Jove! That's a new way to win a woman!"

George flushed angrily and seemed about to offer a retort, but held his breath for a moment; and then held his peace. It was Isabel who responded to the Major. "Oh, no!" she said. "Eugene would never be anybody's enemy—he couldn't!—and last of all George's. I'm afraid he was hurt, but I don't fear his not having understood that George spoke without thinking of what he was saying—I mean, without realizing its bearing on Eugene."

"Well, well," said his grandfather, rising. "It wasn't a very successful little dinner."

Thereupon he offered his arm to his daughter, who took it fondly, and they left the room, Isabel assuring him that all his little dinners were pleasant, and that this one was no exception.

George did not move, and Fanny, following the other two, came round the table and paused close beside his chair; but George remained poised in great imperturbability, cigar between teeth, eyes upon ceiling, and paid no attention to her. Fanny waited until the sound of Isabel's and the Major's voices became inaudible in the hall. Then she said quickly, and in a low voice so eager that it was unsteady:

"George, you're struck just the treatment to adopt; you're doing the right thing!"

She hurried out, scurrying after the others with a faint rustling of her black skirts, leaving George mystified but incurious.

In truth, however, he was neither so comfortable nor so imperturbable as he appeared. He felt some gratification; he had done a little to put the man in his place—that man whose influence upon his daughter was precisely the same thing as a contemptuous criticism of George Amberson Minister, and of George Amberson Minister's "ideals of life." Lucy's going away without a word was intended, he supposed, as a bit of punishment. Well, he wasn't the sort of man that people were allowed to punish; he could demonstrate that to them—since they started it!

Isabel came to George's door that night and, when she had kissed him

THE WISHING PLANE

Now for the story of Captain Sammons and his little boy, Jack. Jack heard it that night aboard the fishing boat. Captain Sammons and his crew aboard the Albatross had been fishing from Mainland for years. Day after day his boat brought in the biggest catch. It ventured out to sea when other boats, built less sturdy, stayed at anchor because of storms.

But it wasn't because Captain Sammons forced his men to do what he wanted that the boat was able to her life was a noted specialist in Edinburgh. The fishing boats had been forced to remain at the docks all that day because of the storm raging around them. Even Captain Sammons had decided not to attempt his daily trip. But when word got to him that "Bobby's little girl" needed help from the big city, he walked quietly down to his boat and prepared to go for the specialist. He told his crew what he was going to do, but told them that they did not need to go with him unless they cared to. Every single one of them, excepting Bobby, went, though. Early the next morning they arrived with the doctor after every one had given them up for lost. The little girl got weaned had done similar kind acts for the others of his crew. Then came the time Captain McGregor told Jack about.

Captain Sammons and his men stayed so long at the fish grounds when a storm came up. It turned out to be one of the worst the fishermen remembered. Luckily the other boats reached the docks before the worst part of the storm came up. But Captain Sammons didn't. The captain had taken his little boy with him that day—a boy who had pleaded so hard for a ride. So when the storm came up the captain and his crew were worried more about the boy than they were about themselves. It wasn't long before the wind had torn away the sail and the waves had broken the rudder. A few minutes later the heavy seas had turned the boat over and all were thrown into the water. Bobby, the little girl's father, you remember, caught the captain's son in his arms as he jumped into the water and swam with him to the life raft. The captain was hurt by a loose timber as the boat tipped over, but two members of the crew helped him to the raft and lifted him onto it. They helped the boy up beside him and hung to the edge of the raft for hours. When it seemed that no help would come soon the men whispered to each other a few minutes and then, using belts and suspenders for ropes, tied the captain and boy tightly to the raft so that the waves could not wash them off. Thompson went by. One by one the sailors became exhausted and let go of the raft—to sink to their deaths. Bobby was the last to go. A day later Captain McGregor and his crew found the raft with Captain Sammons and the boy on it. Both were still alive, though awfully weak.

Dinner Stories

It was one of the days near the end of June, and young Bill, having to sustain a reputation as one of San Francisco's best "town painters," had had a hard fight. He looked it when, at 9 o'clock in the morning, he wandered into the hotel dining room to keep an appointment with a friend, who was just then at breakfast. "Hello, Jack," Bill murmured, yawning. It appeared as if every syllable cost him untold effort. He sat down and rubbed his eyes with his fist. He bit his lips to keep from yawning again.

"Had breakfast?" Jack inquired. "No," the other replied. "Don't want any."

"Well," Jack insisted, "have a cup of coffee, anyway."

Bill yawned in spite of himself. "Don't want any coffee," he said. "It would keep me awake all day."

The seventh grade was having its first lesson on personal pronouns and the teacher had drilled earnestly on the relation of the speaker, person spoken to, etc. Then she asked William to give the person of several pronouns. He got along splendidly until he came to the pronoun "who," and then he hesitated. "Look at its antecedent—mother—that governs the person," explained the teacher. "Now tell us what person it is."

"First," came William's laconic answer.

"No, indeed," protested the teacher. "Mother is the third person—the person spoken of."

"Not at our house," persisted William, and continued his parsing, repeat "First person" with more emphasis.

"Every now and then somebody tries to send a baby through the post-office," laughed the clerk.

"Heartless parents! Don't they care whether their children are lost or not?"

JANES ARE SET FOR FIRST LEAGUE GAME

By George McManus.

LENGQUIST SLATED TO PLAY FOR HOME CLUB

BRINGING UP FATHER

LAKE SHORE LEAGUE.

JANESVILLE	6	8	.429
Waupun	2	11	.154

Janesville baseball fans will get their first taste of Lake Shore league baseball at the fair grounds tomorrow afternoon when the newly franchised Lawrence Janes will battle the McVoy All Stars of Milwaukee. Although Janesville has necessarily assumed 4th place in the league, there is plenty of chance, with an even break of luck, of grabbing off the bunting. The Janes are but half a game behind the Koshongus of Milwaukee, and a game and a half behind McVoy outfit. A victory tomorrow night put the team into a tie for fourth place, only a half-game behind the All Stars.

Game Starts at 2:30. Due to the fact that the Milwaukeeans must get the 8 o'clock rattle out of Janesville, the game will begin at 2:30 instead of 3:00 o'clock tomorrow. This should give ample time to play the full nine innings and a couple of extra innings if necessary. An official league umpire will be on the job. Sam Lengquist is slated to oppose Mel Wolfgang, former Chicago White Sox hurler, on the firing line tomorrow. Fans have weathered the rocky road and are counting on him to keep down the number of Milwaukee blows while Sachs, Pierce, Vinye, Bond, et al. are busy clouding the pill for another team to make Janesville a feared team in the Lake Shore league. Despite the fact that Lengquist has none of this former league pitcher stuff attached to his name, he can pitch ball and fast now. He has an able battery mate in Tommie Croake, who, by the way, knows how to use a stick when a run is needed.

Now up to Fans. Undoubtedly it will be the best game on the home lot so far this year. Both teams have weathered the early part of the season in excellent style and have hit their stride so nothing but an exciting contest can result.

Special street-car and auto bus service will be put on to accommodate the 1,200 odd fans who are expected to pack the grandstand.

Ever since the first of the season there have been a lot of birds here who have been howling for good baseball. Manager Murphy has been working in getting Janesville into the best semi-league in the state and the first game is slated for tomorrow. What the fans will do tomorrow will be interesting to watch.

Line-tips for the fray follow: Janesville: Markis, 1b; Kuehn, c; Gorman, 2b; Miller, 3b; Bond, 3b; Kaskuske, cf; Croake, c; Lengquist, p.

Health Clinic. Stoughton.—Stoughton is to have a health clinic as a result of a recent campaign conducted by the Dane County chapter of the Red Cross and the University of Wisconsin. The health instructor employed by the school board will work with the clinic, make diagnoses, do home visiting, and report concerning adults as well as children.

COBB GRABS LEAD IN AMERICAN WITH .355 HITTING STRIDE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) Chicago, Aug. 8.—The battle between two stars, Sisler, St. Louis, and Cobb, Detroit, for premier honors among the American league batters, resulted in the latter taking first place from his rival, with an average of .355, according to unofficial averages released today. Sisler is ten points behind. Bobby Veach, also of Detroit, is trying hard to get into the race, and make it a three-cornered one. He is hitting at a .354 clip, one point behind the runner-up to Cobb.

Sisler retained his lead in total bases with a mark of 186 bases. Johnston, Cleveland, caught up to the St. Louis star in stolen bases. Each has stolen 22 bases.

"Babe" Ruth, the Boston slugger, has failed in his last five games to add to his string of 18 homers which puts him at the top of the circuit drive hitters.

Other leading American league batters for 35 or more games: Peckinpaugh, New York, .343; Jackson, Chicago, .334; Flagstead, Detroit, .326; Hellman, Detroit, .325; Jacobson, St. Louis, .325; Rice, Washington, .324; Gandil, Chicago, .324; E. Collins, Chicago, .322; Ruth, Boston, .312.

George Lewis, National. Z. Wheat, the Brooklyn outfielder, dropped from second to fifth place among the batters of the National league. Jimmy Thorpe, the Indian, of Boston, also suffered a batting slump, but retained his hold on first place with an average of .357.

Wheat, the Brooklyn manager, is vying the Thorpe for first place with a mark of .351. Hornsby, St. Louis, climbed from eighteenth to ninth place.

Cravath and Kauff of New York, remained tied for circuit drive honors, with 9 homes each. Kauff continuing to lead in total bases with 181.

Gron, Cincinnati, has taken the lead as a run-getter, having registered 59 times.

Cutshaw, Pittsburgh, added four stolen bases to his string and is showing the way to the base stealers with 29 thefts.

Other leading National league batters for 35 or more games: Roush, Cincinnati, .324; McHenry, St. Louis, .323; W. Davis, Brooklyn, .314; Myers, .323; Doyle, New York, .313; Uingo, Cincinnati, .312; Hornsby, St. Louis, .308; Williams, Philadelphia, .307; Rice, Boston, .307; Kauff, New York, .307.

Hendryx, St. Louis, retained his same mark of .348 for batting honors in the American association. Becker, Kansas City, has been wielding the bat with telling effect and has taken the lead in total bases hitting from his team-mate, Good.

Good, for second place in batting with a mark of .332, two points behind Good. Becker also cracked out four more homers during the week.

Becker, Louisville, broke the tie for stolen base honors, shared last week with Smyth, Milwaukee, and is out in front with 24 thefts, to 31 for his rival.

Other leading batters for 35 or more games in the American association: O'Mara, Indianapolis, .328; E. Miller, St. Paul, .317; Covington, Indianapolis, .315; Kieckhefer, Louisville, .311; W. Miller, Kansas City, .309; Cochran, Kansas City, .304; Leary, Indianapolis, .303; Sawyer, Minneapolis, .303; Duncan, St. Paul, .303.

STARS SURE OF WIN OVER JUNIOR FAIRIES

With every man in the best of condition, the All-Stars are waging a two to one on themselves in their game against the Junior Fairies of Beloit at Yost's park at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. The stars and the fairies are both in top shape for duty in the box.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

The Cincinnati and Pittsburgh clubs of the National league recently were directed to complete the game called on July 8 at the end of the sixth inning to allow Cincinnati to catch a train. The National league board of directors changing its decision of several days previous when the clubs were ordered to play a nine-inning game to replace it in the records.

The game was called with Cincinnati ahead, 2 to 0. The remaining three innings will be played.

Only one precedent for such a proceeding is contained in modern baseball history, that being when New York and Philadelphia finished the final inning of a game which had been forfeited by an umpire in Philadelphia because spectators, he said, interfered with batters by waving from center field seats.

The board of directors ordered that Cincinnati and Pittsburgh play the unfinished portion of the game as though it never was interrupted.

The board severely censured Managers Moran and Besdek for entering an agreement to call the game at a certain time, holding that Cincinnati could easily have caught a later train for Boston.

Has caused more ill-feeling in the National league than anything else for some years. Gerry Harman, president of the Cincinnati club, has wired President Harbord, protesting against what he called the unjust decision.

The game was expunged from the records because of a protest by New York, owing to the closeness of the pennant race.

Charles B. Durborrow of Philadelphia, who is credited with being America's champion long-distance swimmer, will attempt to establish a new world's record for the famous English channel this fall.

In a letter to Harry G. Stevens, famous swimming instructor and personal friend in Cleveland, O., whom he has asked to put the finishing touches in his training, Durborrow says he expects to make the swim from Dover to Calais in 16 hours, which is some six or seven hours faster than the time set by Captains Webb and Burgess, the only two swimmers who have ever been successful in swimming the channel.

The airline distance between Dover and Calais is 21 miles, but the swimmer must swim approximately 35 to 40 miles because of the baffling conditions, such as changing tides, cross currents, rip tides, undercurrents, and warm water spots and mists, all of which are bound to discourage the strongest swimmer's efforts.

Quite a sensation was aroused in Cleveland swimming circles when Stevens said that in all probability Durborrow would appear at the Maplewood Shore club before going across the water to capture Europe's most coveted honor.

This year's attempt to swim the English channel will be the second made by Durborrow. All through the spring and summer of 1914 he trained for the event. Then after months of the most grueling tests he was forced to postpone it on account of the European war.

Swimmers who realize how discouraging this is wonder how he ever managed to scrape up the courage for a second trial. That he did, swimmers claim, is a real test of his man of superhuman courage, and if ironbound grit is the chief factor in the swim Durborrow will surely succeed.

Swimming in the choppy water around the Delaware water gap near Philadelphia at least three times a week, Durborrow also rows 40 miles every Sunday in a singles skiff.

This is to develop the muscles of his back, which form the backbone of the overarm and trudgeon strokes.
